

Dear {contact.first},
Welcome to your Clinerion Courier – Fall Edition, 2019.

Real-World Data from a Global Network of Hospitals

In this edition of the Clinerion Courier, we are pleased to announce that we have a new partner hospital in Brazil. Patient data from the Hospital Angelina Caron will soon go online on Patient Network Explorer (PNEx), accessible for (de-identified) query by users of the system [View full press release].

Since the last edition of the Courier, patient data from a further three hospitals have gone online on the platform.

As of today, PNEx's hospital network currently covers over 130 sites in 19 countries, encompassing over 73.5 M patients. We have been working hard to continue the explosive rate of growth of our global network of partner hospitals. We are proud to have a truly international hospital network on Patient Network Explorer; one which offers live, real-world data, a truly global scope, and is associated with competent and trial-ready sites with experts and facilities which can support cutting edge clinical trials.

The Eye of the Expert

Gathering and Connecting Patient Data in a challenging environment

We spoke with Lenka Kellermann from O.I.s) about Real-World Evidence and how it will support healthcare more and more in the future. "Real-world evidence [...] enables the development of realistic clinical trial designs, via the design of better protocols, which reflects the real patient population better."
